the thread that holds together our shared world and an interconnected future. As stated in this report, these two universal principles should become fundamental in . science of the future, since they guarantee its unity. At the same time, they must serve as the foundation of politics if we want the future to become truly universal. At present, according to the report, most governments and industry leaders do not realize that the future is interconnected. They are guided by traditional views, according to which the future may be different.
